

HEATING MANTLE

BE 145

This text appears to be an incomplete product description for a laboratory heating mantle (also known as a heating block or mantle heater), commonly used in scientific settings for safely and uniformly heating glassware containing flammable or sensitive liquids. These devices are essential in labs, pharmaceutical manufacturing, chemical processing, and glass plants for applications like distillation, reflux, or extraction.

FOLLOWING STANDARD

As per standard

BALAJI ENTERPRISES